The Selection Panel, composed of Mrs Elena Odysseos (as the Head-Organiser of the Session and the designated representative of the National Organising Committee), Mrs. Sabrina Mellerowic (as the Past Session Editor) and Mrs. Noura Berrouba (as the Member of the Governing Body) convened on the 16th of March 2020 to select the Editor(s) for the 94th International Session in Nicosia. The panel unanimously agreed to invite

- Clear understanding of their role as Editor(s) and how to facilitate the work of their prospective Media Team;
- Approach to media work at an International Session, understanding it as an opportunity to implement new ideas and develop a sustainable impact on EYP practices;
- Impressive experiences both within and outside of EYP, with respective strengths and weaknesses complementing each other.

Remarks from the panel

The Selection Panel received applications by 3 individuals by the end of the deadline. 2 of these individuals presented a joint application. The panel first reviewed all applicants thoroughly on their own merits, paying special attention to considering each individual's ability to fulfil the official selection criteria. In a second step, the panel compared both applications. The quality and content of the application, evaluations, the candidate's vision as well as their understanding of the NOC's vision, especially the within the framework of its four pillars (“#culturalEdge”, “#socialEdge”, “#politicalEdge” and “PeopleOnTheEdge”) was especially important. Again, the selection criteria were used as a reference point for the comparison.

The panel would like to express their gratitude to all applicants for the time and effort they put into their applications. The unsuccessful candidate has been informed about the selection before the publication of the report and has been offered feedback on their application.

The panel would like to express their best wishes and support to Jago and Matthias for editing at the 94th International Session of the EYP!
